About the pattern:

The pattern is made in layers, enabling you to print one size at the time.

Legal:

When you buy a pattern from Made by Runi you're entering a personal agreement with Made by Runi / Runi Arntsen. You are not permitted to in any way share or re-sell a bought pdf-pattern. Of course you are permitted to buy the pattern for someone else, in those cases the agreement transfers to the recipient. As an example, if let's say your grandmother wants the pattern (or you want her to have it) you're of course allowed to buy and print it out for her. I permit commercial use in a small scale. To clarify, if you have a small business (sew on your own) you do not need any additional permits to produce clothes from the pattern to sell, all I ask is that you in some way mention that it is from a Made by Runi pattern.

Material:

I recommend using cotton-jersey knit for this pattern. It's possible to use interlock and probably French terry as well, but the pattern is made for cotton-jersey primarily so you may have to adjust accordingly.

I recommend hemming or the use of lace at the bottom but it is possible to bind as well.

Material usage:

The pattern is excluding seam allowance, and the illustration below shows the pattern parts on folded fabric with a width of 150 cm. Don't forget to take seam-allowance and shrinkage in consideration if you order fabric after the pattern measurements. The length of the skirts are drawn for binding or lace, if you will use hem, add for that.

Printing:

Print the document in actual size and check so that the control square is at the exact right size. There are marked cut-lines on the printed papers, it's important that you remove the excess paper. Assemble the pattern as depicted below, tape is your friend. Every size has it's own color on the pattern to make it easier to trace. This pattern is made using layers, enabling you to print 1 size at the time.

Getting started:

Start with tracing the size you're going to sew. Since people vary in the amount of allowance they are comfortable with, I've chosen not to add any and let you decide for yourself. Add allowance where you are going to sew together two pieces. Do not add allowance where you're going to trim. I usually have an allowance of 0.6 cm since I usually use a serger with a seam that's 0.5cm wide.

Cut all the pieces you need, I've chosen to show the version with shoulder pieces in the tutorial, if you don't want to use that detail, just cut out the sleeves without the colourblocking. I.e. cut the whole length of the sleeve. When you're done cutting you will have one front piece, one back piece 2 sleeves (possibly 2 shoulder details) and lastly two semicircles for the skirt, one long and one short.

Start with stitching the shoulder details, right against right, if you're not using them skip to the next step.

Stitch the shoulder seams. I usually start with stitching the sleeves to the front piece and then stitch the back piece to the right sleeve leaving one of the raglan seams open for the binding. Sew right against right and remember that the raglan seam on the sleeve is shorter on one side to match the seam on the front piece.

When you have sewn the raglan seam it should look like this.

There after I bind the neck and the edge of the sleeves.

Then I sewed the skirt parts in to place, right against right. The short in front and the long at the back.

After that I sewed the side seam on the right hand side from the sleeve all the way down the skirt.

Now it's time to add the lace, hem or bind the edge of the skirt. Since a lot of people have asked about a tutorial on how to apply lace I've chosen to do that here. I normally use lace about 1 inch in width, if it's elastic or not is of no real importance. Sew right against right all the way around the skirt.

Fold down the lace and sew a regular seam all the way around, making it fold inward instead of outward.

When that is done all you have to do is to stitch the last shoulder and then the sleeve/side, and now you're finished :)
